

IV. FY 2012 Development Program

Project Development

Region VII Planning and Development Council is an EDA Economic Development District (EDD) and an Appalachian Regional Commission Local Development District (LDD) and works closely with State and Federal officials in implementing projects that are funded. The Council keeps a list of about 130 projects in various stages of development for a region that includes 7 Counties. Region VII Planning and Development Council staff has been active in project development in the 5 County Presidential Disaster area covered by this Economic Adjustment Disaster plan since 1972. In 2010 three hazard mitigation projects, worth in aggregate over $1,500,000, were funded as a direct result of Region VII project development and those projects being listed in the EDD's project priority list. Prerequisites for these projects to qualify included 1) the project had to be identified, 2) developed, 3) complete with costs, and 4) reside on an official project list. The EDD has the capacity to make recommendations for funding, provide procedural guidance in Architect/Engineering (A&E) procurement, act as liaison between funder and project sponsor and provide administrative services if the project supports that function.

The Method

When a potential project has been identified the local elected officials need to be contacted first. If it is in a municipality, town or city council members should be contacted. If the project is in the county outside of municipalities, then the county commissioners are appropriate contacts. Each local government is a member of Region VII Planning and Development Council (EDD) and they may contact the Executive Director or request that the person with the project idea contact the Executive Director of the EDD.

The staff at Region VII Planning and Development Council can make an expeditious assessment of the project and recommend the next step in project development. It may be gathering some more information, garnering more local participation or simply a project meeting with the EDD Staff. When the project has ample support and exhibits viable benefits, then in most cases an A&E procurement would be the next step. The EDD staff has capacity to facilitate that process for the project team. Please note; not all projects require A&E services. The project would also be placed on the regional project list at this time.

At the point where there is a written project description and costs estimated the project is ready to be developed into a funding application. Normally a funding program that fits the project has to be identified. Region VII Planning and Development Council (EDD) has the capacity to complete intricate applications and has a working knowledge of funding opportunities. Some funders require public hearings or other public and regulatory input. Region VII Planning and Development Council (EDD) is familiar with the process and can help move the project forward.

The method is very simple; contact the responsible local officials and then Region VII Planning & Development Council which is the local EDD for the Economic Development Administration and LDD for the Appalachian Regional Commission. Region VII Planning and Development Council also acts as the regional clearinghouse of State and Federally funded projects. This additional role of the Regional Planning and Development Council ensures integration of strategies, reduction of duplicated services and the development of strong collaborations of funders and partners in the implementation of projects.

EACH COUNTY PLANNING COMMISSION OR PROJECT SELECTION COMMITTEE DETERMINES HOW LOCAL NEED POINTS ARE TO BE DISTRIBUTED.

LOCAL DETERMINATION OF NEED	25	--OR LESS in increments of five (5). One project in each county can receive 25 points The one (1) top priority project in each county can receive 25 points.
	20	--OR LESS in increments of five (5). A County's remaining priority points are to be distributed among its other projects, in increments of five (5), up to twenty points.

The County Commission or County Planning Commission may prioritize their respective projects and submit their findings on a basis to the Region VII Planning and Development Council. The submission must be made in order that the Council may include the information in its Project Priority List. If the county information is not submitted in time, the Council will use the previously submitted county priorities.
